NEPHEW ELOPES WITH HIS WIFE

Charles Elliott Complains to Police That Ed Banks Ran Away With His Better Half.

LEAVING 2 YOUNG CHILDREN

Had Become Suspicious of His Relative, Who Roomed at Elliott's—Were Too Intimate.

That the act of his nephew, Ed Banks, when he ran away with Mrs. Charles Elliott of North Harrison street was not the act of a relative is the belief of Charles Elliott, who is now searching for his better half. He last saw his wife and his nephew Saturday afternoon together about four o'clock, when she said that she was done with her husband and that she intended to leave with her husband's relative. They managed to escape Elliott and left for parts unknown. It is the belief of Elliott that they went to Canada.

Ed Banks came to live with Mr. and Mrs. Elliott three weeks ago. According to the story told to the police by Elliott, Mrs. Elliott soon became very intimate with Banks and her husband had grown suspicious. He had grown so suspicious that he watched the movements of the two, but still never found any guilty actions on the part of either one of them.

Saturday afternoon about three o'clock Mrs. Elliott asked her husband for some money to buy groceries. He gave her the money and never thought anything of the incident at the time. Later he saw her go down to the J. M. & I. railroad and again growing suspicious, watched her. He saw his nephew, Banks, come on to the railroad near Fifth street and met his wife.

Then Elliott broke into the game. He borrowed a wheel and started down Morgan street to head them off. He was successful as he caught them together on the railroad near Fifth street. The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott were with Banks and Mrs. Elliott. The husband stopped them and said that he was acquainted with their plans.

Mrs. Elliott politely informed her husband that she was done with him and that he could take the two children and go, that she was going to leave with Banks. Elliott told the police that he was so dumbfounded that he stood there with his two children and watched them walk away. That is the last that he saw of Mrs. Elliott.

But Elliott, so it seems, is determined to have his wife back and to bring his nephew to justice. It is said that he made the statement that he had three thousand dollars which he would spend to bring his wife back to his side. It is also stated that he intends to have post cards made of his wife's picture and will send them to the police department of every large city in the country. The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott are five and two years old.

DEADLOCK IS BROKEN

Knightstown Grants Pennsylvania
Right to Construct Grade.

The deadlock between the town council and the Pennsylvania railroad has been broken, the council passing an ordinance granting the company the right to construct a grade through town. The company first proposed twelve-foot openings over the streets, but finally agreed to provide fourteen-foot openings on the main streets.

"DRUNKS" WORRY POLICE

Send Several Men Home But No Arrests Are Made.

The police were worried with "drunks" Saturday night and yesterday. Although there were no arrests made the officers sent several men home Saturday night who were partially intoxicated. It is said that residents of North Main street were bothered by a few drunken men last night but the police were not called.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG FARM HOME

Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Archey Near Milroy Goes up in Flames.

ORIGIN OF BLAZE UNKNOWN

Fire broke out in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Archey two and one-half miles northwest of Milroy late Saturday night and completely destroyed it. A good portion of the household goods were saved from the flames due to the assistance and heroic work of neighbors. The members of the family are at a loss to explain the origin of the fire. They discovered the house in flames and they had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the structure. A telephone message was sent to Milroy and a large crowd of people from there went out to assist in the work of saving the household goods. The loss is estimated at about fifteen hundred dollars which is partially covered by insurance.

NEWLYWEDS STEAL MARCH ON FRIENDS

Large Crowd Awaited Mr. and Mrs.
John Demmer Last Night But Failed to Arrive.

UNDERTAKER IN HIS MACHINE

It is certain that John Demmer and his bride of five days would receive a royal welcome yesterday evening had they arrived home on schedule time. A crowd of probably fifty of his friends were waiting at the train when it came in but they were to suffer disappointment. The young people had received a "tip" that there would be a rousing reception awaiting them here and for that reason, they deferred their trip home until a later date. The crowd carried about everything that could possible have been used to receive a young married couple. A local undertaker was at the train in his machine prepared to rush them away from the crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Demmer received their share of the jokes which are generally played on young couples, when they were married in Kokomo last Thursday morning. Mr. Demmer was carried away by his admiring (?) friends and his suit case was liberally decorated and festooned with suggestive articles.

BATESVILLE CITY OFFICIALS HERE

Investigating Civic Conditions of Rushville, Connersville, Cambridge
City, and Other Cities.

TRIP BEING MADE IN AN AUTO

Their Slogan is "Batesville! A Utopian Municipality, Now or Never."

Mud and rain was no deriment to George M. Hillenbrand, mayor of Batesville; Jacob F. Drescher, city clerk; John Nickol, Charles J. Doll, Henry Ballman and John H. Behlmer, councilmen of the thriving and progressive little city of Batesville. They have a purpose and an intention, which bubbles forth in their system to such a degree that nothing seems impossible and improbable to them, and their intention is to make Batesville "A Utopian Municipality, Now or Never."

The above party is making a trip to Connersville, Cambridge City, Rushville, Shelbyville, Greensburg, and Columbus in a large touring car to investigate the conditions of the streets, sidewalks, electric light and water plant, private or municipal, and the prevailing system as to the city government, city health control, and city police protection. Their intention is to cull the best point from each city and put the idea into operation in their own municipality.

The party reached Rushville at noon. They came here from Cambridge City. While here they went through the city building, conversed with members of the fire department and police department; called on Mayor B. A. Black and looked at the water and light plant. From here the party went to Shelbyville.

They expressed themselves as being very much pleased with the general appearance of Rushville, spoke highly of what they had heard of the local sewer system, wished Rushville the best of success with its streets to be constructed under the three-mile road law. But said, in closing, that Rushville, like all other cities, offered plenty of opportunity for improvement.

WOULD-BE SLAYER IS STILL AT LARGE

Youth Who is Accused of Shooting
William Goodin, Brother of Ben Goodin, Out of Justice.

REPORTED HE WAS CAUGHT

The report from Edinburg Saturday that Ralph Lee, the youth accused of shooting Night Watchman B. Goodin, had been captured near Southport, was untrue, says the Columbus Republican. The youth is still at large or at least he was up to a late hour Saturday afternoon, and it is thought that he made good his escape. A horse and saddle are missing from the Nineveh neighborhood and it is said that he took this method of escape. One report about him is that he has a cave in the Brown county hills and is hiding there.

THEY CLAIMED RUSHVILLE.

Greensburg Democrat: Two men, who claimed their home as Rushville, found wandering about east of town Saturday afternoon were ordered to leave town by Sheriff S. N. Patterson and obeyed orders forthwith.

UNCERTAIN AS TO DAMAGE CASE

Willie Glaska, Son of Michael Glaska
Who Was Killed, May Later Bring Suit.

NOT OFFERED $1000 FOR TICKET

Coroner Blackwell of Marion County
Blames Conditions at Union Depot in Part for Accident.

It is not at all improbable that Willie Glaska, son of Michael Glaska, who was killed in Indianapolis Friday night when he was struck and cut almost in two by a Pennsylvania switch engine, will file suit against the Indianapolis Union Railway company for the death of his father. Mr. Glaska said this afternoon that he was uncertain as to what course he would pursue as yet. He intends to go to Indianapolis tomorrow and investigate the case farther.

It was rumored on the streets today that Willie Glaska had been offered one thousand dollars for the ticket which his father carried in his pocket at the time he was killed. Mr. Glaska denied this report this afternoon and said that the railroad had made him no such offer. After he had his ticket punched he was then a passenger on the railroad and for that reason it was thought that the railroad would like to have the ticket and possibly save a law suit.

Coroner Blackwell of Marion county, according to the Indianapolis Star, blames the conditions at the Union Station in part for the death of Mr. Glaska. The coroner said last night in a city the size of Indianapolis the trains should not pass through the Union Station, but should be backed in as they are in such cities as St. Louis. He said this would eliminate the possibility of passengers passing across tracks.

Only to show that the family had practically made every arrangement to move to Shelbyville, it might be mentioned that Mr. Glaska had sold his property. He had made practically every arrangement to locate in Shelbyville and open up there in business for himself.

The funeral services were held at the Catholic church this morning at nine o'clock, conducted by Father Cronin. Burial was made in the Catholic cemetery. A large number of people from other cities were here for the services.

FIND A SUIT CASE BACK OF POOL ROOM

Police Learn From the Connersville Authorities That Grip Had Been Stolen.

CONTAINED NOTHING OF VALUE

"The Mystery of the Suit Case" might be the title of the story comprising the chain of incidents in connection with a suit case found back of the Fred Gale pool room today. The case had the name Alvis Roydon on it and contained several order books belonging to the firm, Rodderick Manufacturing company, of Mansfield, Ohio. City Marshal Jesse Halow notified the Connersville police and learned that the suit case had been stolen in Indianapolis Saturday. The owner of the grip has not been found nor has the thief.

MARRIED WOMAN LEAVES

Rumor Today That Her Husband is Searching For Her.

It was common rumor on the streets today that a prominent young married woman had suddenly disappeared from home. It is said that her husband is doing everything within his power to locate her and inquired of relatives in several cities near here.

VENERABLE WOMAN PASSES TO BEYOND

Mrs. Isabel Noble Dies at the Age of Eighty-four Years at Home in Posey Township.

SERVICES TO BE WEDNESDAY

The reaper of death, with characteristic silence, slipped into the home of Mrs. Isabel Noble and carried her spirit to the great beyond at 7:30 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Noble was one of the most venerable women in the county, being eighty-four years and four months old. She was a native of Virginia and early in life took the trails for the West. Her husband located in Posey township a number of years ago and that township had been her home ever since. The cause of her death is attributed to senility.

Early in life Mrs. Noble identified herself with the Methodist Episcopal church and had been an enthusiastic and ardent supporter of the church through all of her majority. She is survived by one son, Alva Noble, who resided with his mother.

The funeral services will be held at the home on Wednesday afternoon, June 29, at two o'clock. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Morrow, pastor of the Arlington M. E. church. Burial in the Arlington cemetery.

AGED CITIZEN OF COUNTY IS DEAD

Wm. Bell of Jackson Township Dies
After a Lingerin illness of Five Months.

FUNERAL SERVICE TOMORROW

The death knell sounded at the home of Fred Bell in Jackson township Sunday morning at seven o'clock and called William Bell, another one of Rush county's oldest citizens into eternity. Mr. Bell had been confined to his home for the last five months with Bright's disease. Saturday evening heart failure set in and the complications led to his death. He was seventy-seven years of age.

For a number of years the deceased had been engaged in the lumber business, and previous to that he was one of Rush county's most prominent farmers. He was actively identified with the Christian church. He is survived by his wife, Sarah Bell and sons Fred of Jackson township, Perry, of Columbus, Miss., and daughter, Mrs. Edith Pratt of Jackson township.

The funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow morning at ten o'clock by Rev. Burns of Morristown. Burial will be made in East Hill cemetery.

LOOK FORWARD TO MONSTER CROWD

With Perfect Weather Conditions
"Big Wednesday" is Expected to be Best Yet.

NUMEROUS GOOD ATTRACTIONS

The Committee Promises Some Rare
Treats in Form of New Amusements in Near Future.

With weather conditions remaining the same for the next twelve hours and then with a sudden change for bright sunlight and medium temperature, it is estimated that the largest crowd in the history of "Big Wednesday" will be here day after tomorrow when the third bargain day will be held. That the heavy rain which has been general all over the county will put the fields in such a condition that the farmers will be unable to do much work and that they will take advantage of the bargain day and numerous attractions here and come to the city, is the belief of the majority of the members of the Retail Merchants' Association.

The almost innumerable attractions offered here on Wednesday will probably bring a larger crowd to the city than has yet been present on any other "Big Wednesday." The fact that the merchants have advertised that they will throw away valuable articles from their store tops should alone attract a monster crowd. Probably the most pleasing feature in connection with the day is the continuous concert which will be given by the Indianapolis Newsboys' band. Other attractions which have been used on other days will be found, including the big bargains, free matinee shows and a band concert in the evening.

The committee in charge of the "Big Wednesday" entertainment promises some rare surprises for the future. The members of the committee have been corresponding with Indianapolis amusement concerns and may land a big attraction for later days. They may bring the Overland wind wagon here and several other attractions are being considered.

LOCAL DENTIST LEAVES HIS HOME

That E. F. VanOsdol, Dentist, Had Gone to Parts Unknown Was Relative's Statement.

WAS SEEN ON EARLY I. & C. CAR

E. F. VanOsdol, dentist, left the city this morning on the early morning I. & C. traction car for parts unknown for good, was the startling statement of a relative of Dr. VanOsdol's this afternoon. He refused to discuss the question farther, but said that he believed that something was at the bottom of the sudden departure. Dr. VanOsdol was seen on the car going to Indianapolis this morning. Mrs. E. F. VanOsdol and son Dean are at present visiting her parents in Dillsboro, Ill.

Dr. VanOsdol is a prominent member of the Rushville Gun and Country club and has taken an active part in the local shoots and tournaments. He was a successful dentist and was only recently elected secretary of the Eastern Indiana Dental Association.

IT ALL DEPENDS UPON THE PARTY

Republicans Say One Thing, the Democrats Another.

EXPENDITURES OF CONGRESS

The Democrats Maintain That the Session Just Closed Was Fifty-four Millions of Dollars More Than a Billion-Dollar Congress, While the Republicans Maintain Equally Stoutly That It Fell Short of a Billion.

Washington, June 27.—Was this a billion dollar session? Is the Taft administration, with its promise of retrenchment and reform, to be more expensive than the Roosevelt regime? Republicans and Democrats differ on the subject, and both parties intend to use their particular views as campaign material this fall. The row over the expenditures authorized by congress at this session promises to be lively.

Representative Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of house appropriations committee, and Mr. Livingston of Georgia, the senior minority member of the committee, have issued their statements on the subject. Mr. Tawney contends that the session just ended was not a billion dollar affair; that the total was $907,000,000 as compared with $1,009,000,000 for the current year and that consequently the administration has made good on its pledge of economy. Mr. Livingston's statement will fix the total amount appropriated this year at $1,054,000,000, compared with $1,045,000,000 last year, and will assert that the Taft regime has failed to keep its promise of retrenchment, and bids fair to be the most expensive in the history of the government.

The Republicans and Democrats always differ as to the annual cost of running the government. The Tawney and Livingston statements seldom agree within a hundred millions or so. But this year the situation is complicated by a statement given out by Senator Hale, chairman of the senate appropriation committee, fixing the total at the session just closed as $1,026,000,000. When Mr. Tawney read the Hale statement he sniffed and declared that it was entirely inaccurate. He also said that Livingston's claim that the appropriations this session aggregated $1,054,000,000, was "ridiculous." Mr. Livingston remarked that Mr. Tawney's estimate of $907,000,000 was "foolish." Senator Hale has not commented as yet on the Tawney and Livingston estimates.

It likely seems odd to the average citizen that there should be any chance for dispute as to the amount of money appropriated by congress at a session. It would seem to be a simple matter of determination with the aid of a pencil and paper or an adding machine. But it is not, by a long shot. The Republicans and Democrats invariably disagree. Mr. Tawney includes in his total only those appropriations which will be a charge on the treasury in the fiscal year following the session at which they are made. Livingston makes his estimates include all appropriations of the session. Senator Hale had in part done the same thing. His statement and that issued by Mr. Livingston differ only by the $23,000,000 authorized in the public building bill.

Sweeping aside all technicalities, the fact remains that congress authorized at the session just ended the expenditure of $1,054,000,000, of which probably not more than $907,000,000 will come from the treasury during 1911. Its accounts for the difference of the $107,000,000 between the claims. There was some fear in both branches of congress during the closing days of the session that President Taft might consider it necessary, in view of the efforts being made by his administration to hold down expenditures, to veto the river and harbor and public buildings bills, the big "pork barrel" measures of the session. If he had he would have reduced the total of appropriations by more than $75,000,000. But as he did not, the fact is that the first Taft congress has obligated the government to the payment of $10,000,000 more than did the great billion-dollar congress in the last year of the Roosevelt regime. The Democrats intend to harp on this fact in the campaign.

OSCAR MONTGOMERY

Named by Indiana Republicans For Supreme Court.

CONGRESS WORKED UP OVER BRIBE CHARGES

Full Investigation Will Be Made During Vacation.

Washington, June 27.—Following the charge made on the floor of the senate by Senator Gore that a bribe of $50,000 had been offered to him if he would withdraw his opposition to legislation affecting the sale of Indian lands in Oklahoma, the senate adopted a resolution introduced by Mr. Gore, directing an investigation into the sale of coal and asphalt property.

The inquiry is to be conducted by the senate committee on Indian affairs, and is to determine whether there is any necessity for the employment of private counsel or agents in connection with the lands belonging to the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes and if the employment of such counsel is necessary, whether a fee of 10 per cent is reasonable. The inquiry hinges on the fortune in attorneys' fees claimed by J. F. McMurray of Oklahoma for services rendered to the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations in land and township cases.

Each house of congress marked its closing hour Saturday night by voting for an investigation of the McMurray Indian contracts. Instead of the usual scene of comparative undignified relaxation from the business of legislation, both houses devoted exceedingly serious attention to the charges of attempted bribery and other forms of improper influence made in the senate by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, and subsequently in the house by Representative Murphy of Missouri. Two separate investigations are provided for, one in each house. Each body passed a resolution creating a select committee of five members to pursue the inquiry to the bottom during the recess of congress and to report whether any of its members are, or have been, interested in any of these contracts.

TROOPS IN EVIDENCE

Mexican Polling Places Were Carefully Guarded Sunday.

El Paso, Tex., June 27.—Rain along the Mexican border Sunday kept the crowds in most of the time and a very light vote is said to have been polled in the election for presidential and vice presidential electors. Troops were in evidence in considerable numbers at all of the polling places and crowds were not tolerated. The anti-electionists seem to have given up hope of electing a man against Diaz. Their candidate is in jail. A message from Mexico City from a non-partisan source declares that Corral will never be the vice president, though the reelection is certain.

RENO PROUD OF ITS WICKEDNESS

Not Since The Bonanza Days Has It Had Such a Time.

TAKING ITS ONE LAST CHANCE

With the Knowledge That Nevada's Next Legislature Is Going to Clamp Lid on Gambling and Prize Fighting, the Present Opportunity Is Being Seized and Worked For Absolutely All There Is in It.

Reno, Nev., June 27.—Not since the bonanza days of the Comstock, forty years ago, has Reno had such a Saturday night. Sunday the smart little town which squats where the desert rises to meet the eastern foot of the Sierras, took the stiff bromo of the pulpit with its dizzy headache and the dose was received with a naughty wink, for Reno is frankly proud of its devilishness. The big time is on, was on about 6 o'clock Saturday night, when the last roulette wheel was installed in the Palace saloon, down across the street from the depot. It will continue from now until the day after the fight between Jeff and Johnson. It will get bigger and bigger as the trains from the west and east dump more and more people out on the station platform. Wickedness as the pulpit construes the word is going to blow up and bust right here in Reno. One last chance, one grand time. Here is the why and wherefore of it, and you can't understand just why Reno and all her divorces are in for the last big fling at licensed joy unshamed and even proud in civil naughtiness, unless you know one or two facts.

In the first place, the ring battle between two men trained to the highest excellence in crushing and crippling will be the last great fight in America. Nevada is the only state left which countenances prize fights of unlimited length, and it is tacitly understood that after this affair of July 4, the legislature is going to make Nevada a sweet and good state by passing the same restrictions on boxing contests that all of the other states have on their statute books. There will be a law here as easy of strict interpretation as that one which Governor Gillette of California brushed off and set in the road of the promoters there.

Then on Sept. 30 a law prohibiting gambling of any kind, which has already passed the legislature, will be operative. Nevada is the last of the states to prohibit public gambling. Nevada is determined to be good, even if the last remnant of the old west, in which the Brooklyn and Westchester school of fiction writers find rich color, has to go. So prize fighting is to be squelched and the roulette wheel, the faro box and the crap board with it.

In the face of this impending moral sterilization came the chance for the final carnival of badness. Reno has taken from San Francisco the right to be sporty, deliciously sporty, from now until the time when that much vaunted supremacy of the white race is either upheld or overthrown by the trick of a five-mule power punch. So back to the good old days of the Comstock kings, even though electric clusters light the green baize instead of pine torch, and men travel to the gaming table in upholstered hotels instead of wagon teams.

Reno heard of her present chance on Tuesday last, when Tex Rickard, the Goldfield mining adventurer and fight promoter, told Reno that its hastily subscribed bid of several thousands was an acceptable sacrifice for the honor of sponsoring the fight. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday were days of frantic preparation, of the oiling of the money-shelling machines everywhere and the sowing for the golden harvest. Then the Pacific coast sports began to drop down the mountain grade from San Francisco, Sacramento and Los Angeles, ready to be early on the ground for the prosecution of business and the enjoyment of pleasure. By Saturday there were nearly a thousand strangers in town, and everything was ready for the blow-off that is to be here in this smart little city on the Truckee for the next ten days. Before the county license bureau closed Saturday 219 licenses for gambling games had been taken out. There will be more applications as the belated gamblers drop into Reno with their tents and stalls, clamoring for a chance to do business. Under the law the keeper of a gambling resort must pay a $100 initial license entry and a toll of $7 a month for each game, poker excepted, or rather ignored, on each crap table, wheel or faro layout that he operates. Some of the biggest saloons in town have as many as eight games going.

The Knock-out Blow

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but to the stomach we are utterly indifferent, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out.

Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Golden Medical Discovery." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If not promptly supplied trade elsewhere.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, cloth-bound. Address Dr. Pierce as above. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

About That Summer Vacation

There are three good reasons why all employees should have vacations, says Elbert Hubbard.

One is so the employer can see how easily anybody and everybody's place can be filled.

The next is so the employee can see when he returns, how well he can be spared, since things go right along without him.

The third is so the employee can show the employer, and the employer can understand that the employee is not manipulating the accounts or engineering deals for his own benefit.

Many a defalcation could have been avoided had the trusted man been sent away for a few weeks every year, and an outsider put in his place.

Beyond those, the vacation has little excuse.

As a matter of recuperation the vacation does not recuperate, since, as a rule, no man needs a vacation so much as the person who has just had one.

The man who is so run down that he needs a vacation can never adjust or reform himself in two weeks. What he really needs is to reform his life.

To work during the year at so rapid a pace that in August one's vitality is exhausted and a rest demanded is rank folly.

What we all need is enough vacation every day so that we can face each morning with health sufficient to do our work in gladness.

That is to say, we need enough of a play spell every day to keep us in good physical condition.

The man who is done up and fagged out has not found his work.

And the man who lives during the year in anticipation of vacation does not deserve one, for he has not ascertained that it is work, and not vacation that makes life endurable.

There be good people who travel by the gorge route so incessantly that their lives go on a strike and palates finally declare a lock-out. Then they land Bernarr Macfadden, and proclaim fasting a virtue.

All this until reasonable health returns, when they again buy commutation tickets via the whirlpool and play hockey with their inards.

If you hustle so continually that your system demands a vacation you have gotten to where you cannot work.

If you have reached a point where you cannot do good work, you cannot enjoy your vacation.

If you absolutely need a vacation you are not in the mood to enjoy it, because it is thrust upon you by necessity, willy-nilly.

Things forced upon us are never pleasant.

The only man who can really enjoy an outing is the man who does not need it.

And the man who keeps his system so strong and well balanced that he does not need a vacation is the one who will eventually marry the proprietor's daughter and have his name on the sign.

Before you manage a business you would better learn how to manage your cosmos.

I know what I am talking about, because I take vacations myself.

More Work for Agents

More work and more hot weather worry for the railway station agents of Indiana. The railroad commission has found that they have, in numerous instances, been disregarding the law concerning posting notices of the arrival of trains and by an order issued yesterday proposes to see that they obey it hereafter.

Burn's Revised Statutes of 1908 (Section 5310) provides that all railway stations be equipped with blackboards, on which the station agents shall post information concerning the arrival and departure of trains at least thirty minutes before due. Information has reached the commission to the effect that in numerous instances agents have left the bulletin boards untouched for days at a time, irrespective of how the trains were running; that many of the boards were worn so that writing on them was illegible and that a general shaking up among the station agents and railroad managers was necessary for the comfort and convenience of the traveling public.

A penalty is provided for failure to observe the law concerning the bulletin board, and this fact is emphatically brought to the attention of the agents as well as the railroad companies in the order from the commission. The companies are ordered to make an inspection of the bulletin boards on their routes and to set to it that they kept not only in good condition, but that they are made to convey accurate information to patrons of the roads.

The Root of the Evil

Singularity enough the railroads supplies whose increased price has increased railroad expenses are all trust products, says the St. Louis Globe-Dispatch. The list of articles, given by President Brown of the New York Central, whose price has increased, shows that the railroads also are the victims of the extortions of the Lumber Trust, the Freight Car Trust, the Steel Trust and the Foundry Trust. They must pay $28 a ton for rails the Steel Trust sells abroad for $18, and everything else is in proportion.

These trusts are the particular beneficiaries of the protective system. The articles enumerated are those especially protected that monopoly may fatten. Pinched by the price of necessities the railroads have sought to follow prevalent custom; instead of going to the root of the evil and demanding either a compensating regulation of all prices or the elimination of a monopoly-promoting tariff, they would raise their own prices.

The railroads, however, do not come within the purview of the policy of the dominant party which has been preaching the gospel of high prices for fifteen years. They are privileged to be shocked, but obviously the skying process must be halted somewhere. Still, if their own prices are to be regulated, may they not logically insist that the price charged them be regulated also? Why should the government which not only allows but assists the trusts in making huge profits, seek to limit the earning capacity of the railroads? If the railroads would make a successful defense against rate regulation they must cease pleading their small cause with higher rates as the remedy, and attack the false economic system which has caused the trouble.

IS T. R. READY FOR ANOTHER FOUR YEARS?

Reply to Gaynor's Welcome Interpreted That Way by Many Auditors.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

ON his return to his native land Theodore Roosevelt said he was ready to devote his life to helping solve the problems of democracy—that any man who had been president of the United States was the debtor of the American people. Beyond this he would have nothing to say on politics for two months.

Aside from the enthusiasm, the shrieking whistles, the booming guns, the parades and the receptions, that was the significant feature of his return.

What does it mean? Just after these sentences were uttered I saw Gifford Pinchot and James R. Garfield leave the grand stand with a highly elated air. They were nodding their heads and were evidently joyous. Beside me on the grand stand I heard a young man say, "This means a third term."

"Friend" Denies Third Term.

A high army officer standing in front of us turned and said that he personally knew it did not mean a third term. He emphasized the word "know."

In view of these differences of opinion perhaps I may be permitted to voice my own idea of the incident, likewise of the welcome home to Theodore Roosevelt. Inasmuch as this is to be my own personal story, I will endeavor to cast aside every preconceived notion, every shred of partisan bias, and give one man's honest first hand impressions.

It was my good fortune to have a place on the Androscoggin, the government revenue cutter that was boarded by Colonel Roosevelt after he greeted his family on the Manhattan and on which he remained during the naval parade and until he landed at the Battery. On the Androscoggin were the official reception comed before the multitude and of being cheered for it; and of the central figure tramping down the stairway from the big vessel to the little one to the music of shrieking whistles, cheering thousands and with a vision of loved faces alight below him.

Others Than Family Joyous.

Perhaps that moment marked the sweetest part of his homecoming. Yet while the affection that met him on the Manhattan was more personal and intimate, it was not more genuine than that expressed in a thousand ways by the joy-mad multitudes that filled the surrounding vessels and that waited behind in the big city and yet behind this throughout the whole land. For were not all of these related to him in Uncle Sam's larger family? Even the deck hands on the freighters shared the sentiment and yelled, with all respect mittee appointed by Mayor Gaynor, the mayor himself, several governors of states and a dozen newspaper men, perhaps 300 in all.

VIEW OF THE EX-PRESIDENT TAKEN ON THE KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA WHEN HE AGAIN DECLINED TO TALK POLITICS.

Battery Crowded Early.

It was 7:45 when the Androscoggin turned downstream from her Eighteenth street pier in the North river. It was Roosevelt weather, the first we had had in weeks. Already the buildings and boats were garlanded with flags and the whistles were lengthening and emphasizing their toots. Swinging into New York bay, the Battery was seen already black with people, and the harbor was dotted with vessels.

Through the Narrows the black hulk of the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria loomed against the Jersey shore, and off Bay Ridge the ships were banked in squadron formation. There were battleships and gasoline launches and vessels all the way between, big boats and little boats, aristocratic boats and "hol polloi" boats, private yachts and tramp steamers, and these, like the men, were reduced to one rank in the democracy of welcome.

Amid them all somebody espied the little Manhattan, where the domestic end of the welcome home had just transpired. Of this we heard at second hand. From the descriptions of eyewitnesses I retained a picture of two smaller Roosevelts rushing to a mother and clinging to her in a way that makes a spectator swallow hard and turn away; of these same youngsters grabbing Kernit and never letting him go; of Congressman Nicholas Longworth kissing his wife with a resounding smack, boldly and unashamed in their tones: "Hello, Teddy, old boy!" "Oh, you Teddy!" "Glad to see you home!" Mayor Gaynor was right in saying that no American citizen had ever had such a welcome before.

The parade signal was hoisted, and one by one the vessels swung into the channel, the giant Kaiserin Auguste Victoria among the number. Back through the bay, past the Battery and up the Hudson and back ran the naval parade, with steam whistles and sirens doing the cheering along the route. It was originally planned to go to Fifty-ninth street, but the route was shortened for lack of time.

Handshaking Is Continuous.

Of course all aboard had to take the returned traveler by the hand. This was a part of the official reception, but they would have done it with the same spirit and eagerness if an official reception had never been heard of, for most of these men were old friends and all of them were Americans who buried party and all other considerations for twenty-four hours and remembered only that this man had been their president and was the most honored of their countrymen.

To my own mind the most dramatic incidents of the naval parade occurred at the turning at Fourteenth street, again when the Roosevelt neighbors came alongside at the Battery and a humbler incident that was perhaps the most significant of all. It is hard to determine just what psychological element entered into the greeting at the turn, but whatever it was every one felt it. As the downward journey was begun every whistle broke loose. These belonged not only to the vessels that Pinchot and Garfield Elated When Promise to Aid Reforms Is Made.

Neighbors In Abundance.

The boat of the Roosevelt neighbors was banked on every deck and on every roof. I think if there had been another human being on that craft he would have fallen overboard from sheer physical necessity. And every man, woman and child was cheering. If anybody was left in Oyster Bay the looks of that boat were deceiving. So close did it come that there seemed danger of a collision. A moment later the Androscoggin was bumping against the Battery pier and the band was playing "Home, Sweet Home."

To return to our cynical newspaper friend. He was sure that every remark with which the returned traveler greeted the committee as it filed past him was studied, that each movement was a conscious pose, and, while he did not say it, he plainly intimated that the former president was planning a return to the White House in 1912. Another scribe seemed to share these views.

Perhaps it was a half hour later that both men took note of a boat laden with human freight, with every human atom making some sort of joyous noise. There were no silk hats or frock coats on this boat, but there was welcome written over every face—welcome without any official tang or red tape—evidently workmen and their families for the most part, the John Smiths and O'Donnells and Lavinskys that go to make up the American people.

The men of the pencil studied that boat, and one of them said musingly: "There is the secret of Roosevelt. He has captured the heart of the common people."

Thereupon I did a little studying myself, and my musings ran in this wise: Why has he captured the heart of the people? Americans are not fools. They look below the surface. They had the discernment to see Lincoln when the leaders could not see him. Is not their confidence in Roosevelt proof that they think him sincere? Is it not because they believe he has fought their battles and will devote his life to fighting their battles in future that they welcome him as they have welcomed no other man living or dead?

Was Pinchot a Mouthpiece?

Then I remembered Gifford Pinchot's speech at St. Paul, with its constantly reiterated demand that the special interests be driven out of politics, including grafters, trusts, bribers, franchise grabbers, privilege seekers—all the brood of the thieves in the temple!

Where did Pinchot get his political ideas in this speech that was his first public utterance after his interview with Roosevelt in Italy? Was he only echoing the sentiments and intentions of his former chief? Why this long Roosevelt silence on political questions that has lasted all through the European tour and is to last two months beyond it? Is it not significant? The same forces against which he contended are still dominant in the country. The impression was heightened by the speech at the Battery. Here again I was fortunate and was near enough to hear him. Certainly this man telling of his debt to the American people and dedicating his life to the solution of the problems of free government meant what he said.

If I can judge men, there was no note of self seeking in his tones. He does owe this to his country, as all the rest of us do, but he particularly, because he has been more honored. May he not be an agent of good even as others have been? Certainly our need is great, and has a nation ever asked in vain? His most sincere friends say he will not accept a third term. But may he not devote his life to what he considers the good of his country and of mankind without thought of place?

My own impression is that, back of all his mannerisms, Roosevelt sincerely desires to serve popular government, progress and righteousness; that he wants to drive the special interests out of politics; that he is not a candidate for the presidency, but feels himself obligated to serve his country in any proper way that it calls upon him; that he may break with President Taft, at least on conservation, and that there is a great political upheaval ahead in which he will play a part and to the bringing of which he will contribute.

However these things may be, it is good to have him with us—good to feel his abounding joy in life.

Society may suit some people, but in the last analysis it consists of nothing but an uncomfortable chair to sit on and a dab of something indigestible to eat.

The Republican fear and the Democratic hopes of a Democratic majority in the next Congress have gone arm in arm down into the dark and darkening recesses of oblivion. The warring factions of the imaginative correspondents have vanished into thin air, peace and harmony reign supreme in the Republican fold, while the Democratic contingent sullenly looks on and wonders.—New Castle Courier.

If reports of the conditions in Nevada in summer time are to be believed, the fight fans who go to Reno on the Fourth of July to see the Jeffries-Johnson mill will certainly have a joyous time of it. The temperature goes up to 150, and the dust gets to be a foot or two deep. There won't be ice enough to go round, and the only shade in the confines of the State will be in the shadow of scattered sage brush. If there be any who wish retribution visited upon the fighters and their followers, it seems likely that their wishes will be gratified.

A review of the work accomplished by the long session of congress, which closed last Saturday, shows that a number of the best measures ever enacted have been placed upon the statute books. The session which has been one of the most notable in the history of the country, has been guided by the President and his success in securing laws which he believed were beneficial for the public is remarkable. Practically every measure which he favored has been passed, and will be remembered in future years as the result of the efforts of one of the greatest Presidents of the United States. President Taft is progressive, although not radical, and his wise, judicious advice has much weight with the leaders of the Republican party.

Among the most noteworthy laws which have been passed this session is the new railroad measure, creating a commerce court. This law gives the new court increased authority regarding the regulation of railroads, and even permits it to inquire into the stock and bond issues of the company. Another law of especial merit gives the Interstate Commerce Commission power to compel the railroads to furnish an accurate report as to the number of accidents, so that Congress may be better informed as to the need of future legislation along this line.

The conservation measures which have been passed are also important and will have a far-reaching effect. Under the new law, which has been passed by the present Congress, a large acreage of valuable coal land will be preserved for future generations. Provisions have been also made for the punishment of persons who disuse public lands.

Better protection for railroad employees was also enacted, laws being passed extending the use of safety appliances.

The present session has been very unsatisfactory from the standpoint of the Democratic campaigners, who have been watching every move with a view to criticism. Now, that congress has closed and the work is completed, they find that none of the Republican laws can be justly criticized, and they must look in other fields for campaign material.

Value of Rest Room

A communication to the people's column on the rest room question in the Columbus Republican may be of interest here and is as follows.

In reading the many questions discussed by the city council, I was glad to see the board of health and Commercial Club had presented the rest room. That has been a need of Columbus for years. The writer's sympathy especially goes out to country women who have to bring little children with them when they come to the city to trade, or whatever business brings them. As was said in the council, things and conditions have changed; there's such a rush in business that when people have made their purchases and done trading the merchants have no accommodations for them, no place to rest an hour or two and to give attention to their children or get a drink of water. Who that has lived in the city any length of time has not seen mothers with little children sitting on steps, or around the doors of stores—any place to sit down. The writer has often spoken to friends about it and wished she could gather them up and take them home to rest in comfort if she had a home in reach. I think the library is too far from the business center. It would be hard to find by tired people from out of town, but by all means let us have a rest room somewhere. Of late years there have been so many clubs among the women of the city the writer has hoped from year to year they would do something in that line, that would be such a benefit to others, but now the subject has been talked of, and people will think about it. The good women will aid in every way they can. We must not fall back on the little park, for that will not fill the bill in many ways. Besides, it is only a summer place. The writer does not know the condition of our court house yard at present, but not very long ago it was a dumping ground for melon rinds, with drunken men here and there, and the swarm of flies over all; and in winter muddy walks, worse than the street, and a shame for a county as rich as Bartholomew county.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

DOZEN COLD ONES.

(New Castle Courier)

A real sensation was created here Thursday when Sheriff Kirk dropped into town and placed Oran Swain under arrest for operating a blind tiger, says a Middletown dispatch. The warrant was issued on an affidavit filed direct in the circuit court by Marshal Dykes, who rounded up a dozen bottles of beer in the rear room of Zell Swain's office. Swain, who is a deputy prosecuting attorney, is coming in for his share of criticism whether he knew the beer was about his premises or not.

There have been unmistakable signs of intemperance here for some time and it is believed that others besides Swain are equally guilty. There are two charges against Swain. One alleges a violation of the liquor law and the other alleges selling liquor without a license. The claim is made that the beer did not belong to a single individual, but that it was the property of a club.

GET K. K. K. CHAPTER.

(Connersville News.)

The latest honors for Connersville is one which has been bestowed upon a group of young ladies by the Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority.

This sorority usually called Tri Kappa, is a secret State organization which has chapters in thirty-six different cities of this State. It is not a high school sorority, but a sorority to which are eligible only girls who have graduated from a high school. Membership in this sorority is only by invitation of its active members. In every city where there is a chapter it supplies a long felt need, an organization with a definite aim of some of the younger women.

Miss Grace Norwood of Lebanon, Grand president of Kappa Kappa Kappa, last evening installed and initiated the Connersville chapter at the home of Miss Nancy Conwell. The charter members of this chapter, Alpha Psi, are Misses Ruth Hull, Nancy Conwell, Inez Lockhart, Meda Krell, Bess Williams, Gladys Lockhart and Edna Pfafflin.

This is the only organization of young women in this city with this kind of an aim. In all cities where there are chapters of Kappa Kappa Kappa it is placed on an equal basis with the literary clubs of the city.

AN AGED TORTOISE.

(Columbus Republican.)

Twenty years ago O. A. Sprague, now a resident of Columbus, found a tortoise on the farm of his father, I. L. Sprague, near Ogilville. The tortoise was a full grown one at that time and had the appearance of being full of years. The finder of the tortoise carved his initials on its back and turned it loose on the farm.

Everett Sprague, a brother of O. A. Sprague, an East Columbus school teacher, who recently returned from a trip to the Rocky mountains, visited his father a few days ago and again found the tortoise with the initials of his brother's name plainly visible on its back and seemingly no older than when they were carved there twenty years ago. The second time the tortoise was found it was not more than a half square away from the point at which it was found twenty years ago.

Dr. C. B. Grover was summoned to 1001 North Broadway about ten o'clock Saturday morning, where he found Mrs. Charles Lutz suffering from effects of drinking "match tea" taken with suicidal intent. She is getting along now and if she will change her drinks to Oolong or Gunpowder tea, may live to a ripe old age.

There is a great deal of preparatory work to do before the balloon can be inflated with gas, which is the last thing to do before going skyward. The remarkable success of Count Zeppelin's dirigible balloon last week in making two long flights to definite points and carrying large numbers of passengers has revived faith here as elsewhere in this mode of air navigation which "furnishes something to hang to" as one expresses it and may put it ahead even of the wonderful Wright aeroplane for practical purposes. Bradford Brothers' machine is a dirigible balloon and the events mentioned will increase local interest in their efforts next week.

There is nothing that more surely indicates bad manners and downright impudence and absolute vulgarity of nature than the almost universal habit of cutting corners at the intersections of streets. Instead of walking on the sidewalks made and provided for that purpose, pedestrians walk across the grass, until a space that extends from the angle back on the lawns, often six feet, is turned into a muddy space, devoid of grass. It is a most reprehensible practice, wholly inexcusable in a respectable neighborhood, and it indicates a community low in manners and morals.

SEES BROTHER IN FILM.

(Hartford City Times-Gazette.)

While watching the motion pictures of the funeral of King Edward of England at the Star theater in Marion, Indiana, last Thursday evening, William Skinner, an Englishman who is employed as a shoemaker at the Rex Shoe factory, recognized the likeness of his brother, Harry Skinner, who is a member of the London band of grenadiers, the crack regiment of the British army. The company led the funeral cortege and the features of the men could be plainly recognized. Skinner and his wife came to this country three years ago from England, where they were born and reared. Skinner was a resident of Pimlico, a suburb of London and the scenes and incidents in connection with the funeral of the late monarch were quite familiar to him. Throughout the show he watched intently for a glimpse of his brother who took part in the parade and when the grenadiers put in their appearance, it was not long until the brother passed into full view. Skinner gave a shout for joy and he could scarcely be restrained after the picture of his brother had faded from view.

THE TOY PISTOL.

Fully half of all cases of lockjaw reported after a Fourth of July celebration are caused by blank cartridges by large fulminating caps in toy pistols.

The wound from a toy pistol usually appears trivial because there is only a small hole through the skin, produced by the entering wad, surrounded by an area that is peppered with unexploded powder grains owing to the injured part, usually the hand, being near to the muzzle of the pistol.

The lockjaw bacillus may be carried in the powder, in dust which gets into the pistol barrel, in the wad which is forced into the flesh, or in the dirt which every hustling lad gets on his hands while celebrating.

To prevent lockjaw following an accident with a toy pistol, the boy must be hurried to a surgeon for the proper cleansing of the wound.

"An ounce of prevention (not giving him the pistol) is worth a pound of cure" at the surgeon's office.

AMUSEMENTS

The management of the Palace theater offers a good program tonight in the film, "The Altar of Love." It is said to be a drama of much merit with a strong plot and some very interesting situations. The climax is said to be very startling and the picture as a whole is said to be very entertaining. A new illustrated song is on the program.

The Vaudet will give an extraordinarily good program tonight in the two subjects, "Skating Rink" and "The False Friar." They are both said to be good pictures and worthy of the patronage of the five-cent theater patrons. A new illustrated song will be on the program.

The Star Grand offers a Lubin drama tonight entitled "A Veteran of the G. A. R." It is one of those stories which at any time grips and holds the interest of the spectator. The narrative value would be as strong in December as in May, but the timeliness of the topic adds somewhat to its immediate availability. It is not one of those pictures in which waving flags and a false appeal to patriotism is made to cover the poverty of the idea. It is a story of real human interest succinctly told by means of artistic acting in a succession of striking scenes. The illustrated song is entitled "When Your Dimples Turn to Wrinkles."

CHAPTER VI. THE REFUGEES.

A COIL of stout rope fell on top of the windlass and rebounded to the deck. More than that, one end of it stretched into the infinity of dripping rock and flying spray overhead. And it had been thrown by friendly hands. It dangled from some unseen ledge.

Coke and Hozier recovered the use of their faculties simultaneously. The eyes of the two men met, but Coke was the first to find his voice.

"Salvage, by Jove!" he cried. "Up you go, Hozier! I'll sling the girl behind you. She can't manage it alone, an' it needs some one with brains to fix things up there for the rest of us." And he added hoarsely in Philip's ear: "Sharp's the word. We 'aven't many minutes!"

Iris permitted Coke and a sailor to strip off a life belt and tie her and Hozier back to back. It was wonderful, though hidden from her ken in that supreme moment, to see how they devised a double sling in order to distribute the strain. When each knot was securely fastened Coke vociferated a mighty "Heave away!"

But his powerful voice was drowned by the incessant roar of the breakers. Not even the united clamor of every man present, fifteen all told, including the drunken chief officer, could make itself heard above the din. Then Hozier tugged sharply at the rope three times, and it grew taut. Amid a jubilant cry from the others he and Iris were lifted clear of the deck. At once they were carried fully twenty feet seaward. As they swung back, not quite so far and now well above the level of the windlass from which their perilous journey had started, a ready witted sailor seized a few coils of a thin rope that lay tucked up in the angle of the bulwarks and flung them across Hozier's arms.

"Take a whip with you, sir!" he yelled, and Philip showed that he understood by gripping the rope between his teeth. It was obvious that the rescuers were working from a point well overhanging the recess into which the Andromeda had driven her bows, and there might still be the utmost difficulty in throwing a rope accurately from the rock to the wreck. As a matter of fact, no less than six previous attempts had been made, and the success of the seventh was due solely to a favorable gust of wind hurling into the cleft at the very instant it was needed. The sailor's quick thought solved this problem for the future. By

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!
And I will tell you why I say this. It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails. No one need risk even one single penny. Just think what this means to the suffering sick!

No risk, no expense, nothing whatever unless health first returns. For 30 full days, and without the risk of a single penny, you can use either of my two famous Remedies—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Then why take any chance whatever?

Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am not tender to you. My "No help money" plan has made Dr. Shoop's Restorative a favorite in every drug store in the land. The doctor who said, "We take no chance whatever here."

For twenty years Dr. Shoop's medicines have become thoroughly standardized all over America. And I have collected honest and responsible druggists in every city and village everywhere to accept my challenge. These selected druggists are placing my medicines with the sick—and the entire risk is mine alone.

But write me first for an order. I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 30 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and thus save all disappointments and delays. Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 30 years experience at the bedside in homes and in Hospitals. All phases of sickness and relief are told of here. They tell of the "inside nerve" no larger than a silken thread that gives to the Heart its impulse. How the Stomach and Kidney each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs surely falter when these controlling or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing nerves, and rebuilds, and restores the lost tone and power. I can help you—if it is within the power of medicine to do so. My best effort is surely yours simple request. So write now, while it is fresh in my mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old, time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

For sale and recommended by Hargrove & Mullin.

that had the ring of sympathy.

Friendly hands placed her in a warm and sunlit cleft, and she lay there, unable to think or move. By degrees the numbness of body and mind gave way to clearer impressions. But she took much for granted. For instance, it did not seem an unreasonable thing that the familiar faces of men from the Andromeda should gather near her on an uneven shelf of rock strewn with broken bowlders and the litter of sea birds. She recognized them vaguely, and their presence brought a new confidence. They increased in number. Sailor-like, they began to take part instantly in the work of rescue, but she wondered dully why Hozier did not come to her, nor did she understand that he had gone back to that raging inferno beneath until she saw his blood stained face appear over the lip of the precipice.

Then she screamed wildly, "Thank God—oh, thank God!" and staggered to her feet in the frantic desire to help in unfastening the ropes that bound him to the insensible Watts. Tears gushed forth at her own helplessness. The pain in her eyes blinded her. She shrank away again. Not until Philip himself spoke did she dare to look at him, to find that he was bending over her and endeavoring to allay her agitation by repeated assurances of their common well being.

"Come, Miss Yorke," said Hozier, "our Portuguese friends say we must not remain here an instant longer than is necessary."

"Yes," said a strange voice, "the sea is moderating. At any moment a boat may appear. Follow me, all of you. The road is a rough one, but it is not far."

The speaker was an elderly man, long haired and bearded, of whose personality the girl caught no other details than the patriarchal beard, a pair of remarkably bright eyes, a long, pointed nose and a red scar that ran diagonally across a domed forehead. He turned away without further explanation and began to climb a natural pathway that wound itself up the side of an almost perpendicular wall of rock.

Hozier caught Iris by the arm and would have assisted her, but she shook herself free. She felt and conducted herself like a fractious child. "I can manage quite well," she said, with an odd petulance.

Suddenly she clung to him. "Don't let them send me back to the ship," she implored.

"No, no. You are safe now."

"Of course I am safe, but I dread that ship. Why did I ever come on board?" Captain Coke said he would sink her. I told you—

"Steady! Keep a little nearer the rocks on your left. The passage is narrow here."

Hozier raised his voice somewhat and purposely hurried her. They were skirting the seaward face of the rocky islet on which they had found salvation. The sun was blazing at them sideways from a wide expanse of blue sky. Thinking he was still dizzy from the effects of the blow, which the girl had ascribed to the bursting of a shell, Philip glanced at his watch. It was twenty-five minutes past 8. Yet he distinctly remembered eight bells being struck while Coke was telling him from the bridge to give the anchor thirty-five fathoms of cable. Was it possible that they had gone through so much during those few minutes?

Just then the track turned sharply away from the sea. A dry water course cut deeply into the cliff, where torrential rains had found an upright layer of soft scoria imbedded in the mass of basalt. Their guide was standing on the sky line of the cleft, some forty feet above them.

"Tell the others to make haste," he said. "This is the end of your journey."

"Who is he?" Iris asked, being rather breathless now after a steep climb.

"I don't know," said Hozier.

"How absurd!" she gasped. "I—I think I'm dreaming. Why—have we come here?"

It was not as a furnace in this narrow ravine. Each upward step demanded an effort. She would have slipped and hurt herself many times were it not for Hozier's firm grasp, nor did she realize the sheer exhaustion that forced him to seek support from the neighboring wall with his disengaged hand. The man in front, however, was alive to their dangerous plight. He said something in his own language, for his English had the precise staccato accent of the well educated foreigner, and another man appeared. The sight of the newcomer startled Iris more than any other event that had happened since the Andromeda reached the end of her last voyage. He wore the uniform of those dreadful beings whom she had seen on the island.

She shrieked. Hozier fancied she had sprained an ankle, but before she could utter any sort of explanation the apparition in uniform was by her side and murmuring words that were evidently meant to be reassuring. Seeing that he was not understood, he broke into halting French.

He was a handsome youngster, evidently an officer, and his eyes dwelt on the girl's face with no lack of animation as he led her into a cave which seemed to have been excavated from the inner side of a small crater.

"You can rest here in absolute safety, madame," he said. "Permit me to arrange a seat. Then I shall bring you some wine."

Iris flung off the hand which held her arm so persuasively.

"Please do not attend to me. There are wounded men who need attention far more than I," she said, speaking in English, since it never entered her mind that the Portuguese officer had been addressing her in French.

He was puzzled more by her action than her words, but Hozier, who had followed close behind, explained in sentences built on the Ollendorffian plan that mademoiselle was disturbed, mademoiselle required rest, mademoiselle hardly understood that which had arrived, et voila tout.

"Mademoiselle without doubt is the daughter of monsieur the captain?"

"No," said Hozier rather curtly, turning to ascertain how Iris had disposed of herself in the interior of the cavern. It was his first experience of a South American dandy's pose toward women, or, to be exact, toward women who are young and pretty, and it seemed to him not the least marvelous event of an hour crammed with marvels that any man should endeavor to begin an active flirtation under such circumstances.

He saw that Iris was seated on a camp stool. Her face was buried in her hands. A wealth of brown hair was tumbled over her neck and shoulders; the constant showers of spray had loosened her tresses, and the unavoidable rigors of the passage from ship to ledge had shaken out every hairpin. The tam-o'-shanter cap she was wearing early in the day had disappeared at some unknown stage of the adventure. Her attitude bespoke a mood of overwhelming dejection. Like the remainder of her companions she was clenching to the skin.

Their trials were far from ended when their feet rested on the solid rock. There was every indication that their rescuers were refugees like themselves. The scanty resources visible in the cave, the intense anxiety of the elderly Portuguese to avoid observation from the chief island of the group, the very nature of the apparently inaccessible crag in which he and his associates were hiding—each and all of these things spoke volumes.

"It cured me," or "it saved the life of my child," are the expressions you hear every day about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This is true the world over where this valuable remedy has been introduced. No other medicine in use for diarrhoea or bowel complaints has received such general approval. The secret of the success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is that it cures. Sold by all dealers.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart and kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the heart or kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once and see! Sold by Frank E. Wolcott.

Coughs and Colds.—At this season when coughs are so prevalent, an effective remedy, and one easily obtained, is Perry Davis' Painkiller. It is no new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over seventy years; and those who use the article, internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor.

A NEW HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE

$2,000,000 Institution About Completed at Madison.

ONE OF BEST IN THE COUNTRY

With a Capacity For 1,200 Patients, the New Institution Will Relieve the Overcrowded Condition of the Other Hospitals For the Insane in Indiana—First Detachment of Patients Will Be Removed About July 15.

Madison, Ind., June 27.—About July 15, when the Southeastern Indiana insane hospital will be ready to receive patients, the state of Indiana will begin to realize on its investment of more than $2,000,000 in what is generally conceded to be the most completely perfect insane hospital in the country.

The board of trustees has selected as superintendent of the institution Dr. E. P. Busse, who serves at an annual salary of $3,600. Dr. Busse is a graduate of the Bellevue hospital medical college in New York and has devoted his life to the study of mental disorders. Assisting Dr. Busse will be four internes, two men and two women, and 120 attendants, sixty men and sixty women. When the entire system is in operation nearly 300 employees will be in service.

The normal capacity of the institution is 1,200 patients, and it will be ready to care for that number when the final construction work is finished. There are five such institutions in the state, the Southern, at Evansville; the Central, at Indianapolis; the Eastern, at Richmond; the Northern, at Logansport, and the Southeastern, at Madison.

The first detachment of patients will arrive some time in July from the Central hospital, and there will be 585 immediately accommodated. They will be brought to North Madison, two carloads at a time—one of men and one of women. Each patient in an Indiana hospital has a record as complete as that of the Bertillon system for the identification of criminals. His record, past and present, his suicidal attempts, if any, his violent attacks, their nature and liability of occurrence are all carefully tabulated and recorded.

ORDER DEMANDED

Indiana Brewers Take a Hand in the Matter of Disorderly Saloons

Indianapolis, June 27.—The Association of Indiana Brewers will push vigorously its work of cleaning up the saloon business in remaining "wet" territory, and will work to educate the public to the repeal of the county local option law, according to announcements made at the association's headquarters, following a meeting of the executive committee.

The association is working quietly to bring about better regulation of the saloons in "wet" territory in order to hold the ground the liquor forces now occupy and to prevent a spread of the temperance wave. For several months the vigilance bureau of the association has been working in conjunction with the authorities in "wet" territory to see that the saloons obey the law.

Stricken Down in Field.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., June 27.—August Grieve, a prominent farmer, was killed by lightning at his home near the village of Farmers Retreat. He was hoeing corn when the approach of a storm caused him to hasten home. When near the barn the bolt struck him. He was carrying a hoe across his shoulder, and careful search fails to discover even a splinter of the hoe handle. Grieve was fifty years old. He is survived by a widow and several children.

LIGHTNING STRIKES NEW SALEM HOME

Tore Flue Off and Cut Telephone Wire at Residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stewart.

Rain fell almost incessantly all day and lightning played about the sky at various intervals, but with little damage locally. The only report of damage came from New Salem, where lightning struck the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stewart. The flue was torn off the house and the telephone wire was cut in two. Aside from that nothing was touched by the lightning. The occupants of the house were not shocked.

Insurgency on the Wane

The success which the Taft administration has attained in the last week or so in pushing measures through congress and bringing the solid Republican force behind the administration bills is being reflected in reports which are coming in from all parts of the United States of the growth of the president's popularity, says a Washington dispatch. Congressmen from the west, that only a few weeks ago were bitter in their talk of Taft, have been getting letters which indicate that the passage of the railroad bill has done much to reinstate the president in the good graces of the west. The growing impression that Mr. Roosevelt is satisfied with Mr. Taft and will come out strongly in his support is helping to clear the situation in the West, and Taft's friends here are in good spirits now. They think that insurgency is on the wane and that when the present congress finishes its work Mr. Taft's hard-earned victory will be recognized. He himself is pleased with the way congress has responded to his requests, and it is apparent that he is sharing the belief of his friends that there are brighter days ahead for his administration. The railroad and statehood bills have been passed and it practically is certain that the postal bank bill and his conservation bill will be added to the list in a day or two. These bills make a big showing, but the president does not intend to stop there. He has strong hopes of getting through a campaign publicity bill before adjournment, and also a bill creating an Appalachian forest reserve. He is, however, directing his efforts chiefly to the campaign publicity bill and to the few small details that remain in regard to the conservation and savings bank bills. A campaign publicity bill has passed the house, and it is planned to take it up in the senate as soon as the remaining two administration bills are out of the way.

Preparations are going on for the adjournment not later than Saturday. Vice-President Sherman expresses the opinion that congress will adjourn by the end of the week.

GETS WORD OF UNCLE'S DEATH

William King Receives Sad News of Demise of Eli Edwards in Shelbyville.

WAS BORN IN THIS COUNTY

Well Known by Pioneer Residents in Vicinity of Manilla—About 72 Years Old.

William King, ex-sheriff, has received word of the death of his uncle, in Shelbyville, which is reported in the Shelbyville Democrat as follows:

Eli Edwards, an aged resident of this city, died very suddenly at 12:20 o'clock Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Watts at 99 East Jackson street. For several months he had been suffering from neuralgia of the stomach and chest, but seemed to be in fairly good health when he started for a walk Friday evening. He returned to his home shortly after eight o'clock and a few minutes later suffered the attack which resulted in his death. Dr. F. E. Ray was summoned to the Watts home as quickly as possible, but the aged man had lapsed into unconsciousness by the time he arrived and the physician was unable to arouse him.

Mr. Edwards was slightly over seventy-two years of age. He was born near Manilla, Rush county, but came to this county many years ago and resided here continuously. Following the death of his wife about two years ago he left his farm in Brandywine township and came to Shelbyville, where he has since been living with Mr. and Mrs. William Watts.

The deceased was a member of the Center M. E. church, northwest of the city. Besides the daughter, Mrs. Watts, he is survived by two sons, Frank Edwards of Hanover township, and Edward Edwards of Manilla; two sisters, Mrs. Matilda King of Manilla, and Mrs. Ann Ireland of Delvan, Ill., and one brother, Isaac Edwards of Oklahoma.

The funeral services were held at the Center M. E. church this afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. Paul Edwards officiating. Interment in the Center cemetery.
